COL. AUSTINE'S WILL

$50,000 for a Hospital, and Many Personal Bequests.

The Full Text of an Instrument Whose Generous Provisions Have Been a Pleasant Surprise.

The terms of Col. Austin's will, which became generally known last Monday, were a pleasant surprise to the Brattleboro community. Besides making generous provision for his immediate relatives, there are numerous personal bequests to residents of this village in which the testator showed his appreciation of services rendered him, and his goodness of heart towards those who had come closely in contact with him. The surprise of the document was a gift of $50,000 for a hospital in Brattleboro, as being of unusual public interest the will is printed here-in full:

I, William Austin, of Brattleboro, Vt., being of sound mind, do make this my last will and testament, revoking all wills heretofore made by me, and dispose of my estate as follows:

First, I give and bequeath to Mrs. Agnes E. Brown, of Brooklyn, the sum of $15,000. To Howard E. Brown and Edna M. Brown, son and daughter of Agnes M. Brown, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and her late husband, Edward L. Brown, and, each the sum of $500. To Howard F. Brown and Frederick L. Brown, sons of the late Francis Brown, each the sum of $1,000, and to Howard M. Brown, son of the late Ozel Eustis, the sum of $500.

Second, I give and bequeath to my nephew, Howard M. Brown, the sum of $10,000, and to my nephew, George H. Brown, the sum of $1,000. To William S. Newton, town clerk of Brattleboro, Vt., the sum of $200, and to Herbert B. Chamberlain, accountant, of Brattleboro, Vt., the sum of $500.

Fourth, I give and bequeath the sum of $500 in trust to establish a permanent fund, the income thereof to be used for the benefit of indigent women and girls of St. Michael's parish, Episcopal church, at Brattleboro, Vt. The distribution will be made by a committee of three ladies of the parish, communicants: Miss Clara M. Gale, Mrs. A. M. Miles, Miss Laura Pentland will compose committee. Vacancies to be filled by existing members. The president of the Vermont National bank of Brattleboro, Vt., will be asked in my name to make the investment.

Fifth, I give and bequeath to the town of Brattleboro, Vt., the sum of $50,000 in trust toward the establishment of a hospital in said town for the temporary treatment of strangers and local invalids peculiarly situated. The hospital will be erected and governed by a board of five trustees and the first chairman of the town, all residents of the town, and three of the members to be reputable physicians. The board will fix the conditions of admission and establish rules for the government of the hospital, it being understood for a time at least that all patients who are able to do so will pay such fees for treatment as the board may require. The board will be composed of Dr. George F. Gale, president, Dr. A. I. Miller, Dr. G. R. Anderson, Charles A. Miles and George C. Averill, secretary of the Vermont National bank, and is empowered to fill its own vacancies as they may occur.

Sixth, I give and bequeath to Miss Ellen A. Canfield of Hartford, Conn., the sum of $5,000.

Seventh, I give and bequeath to the prudential committee of school district No. 2, incorporated at Brattleboro, Vt., the sum of $10,000 in trust to form a permanent fund to be invested by George C. Averill, president of the Vermont National bank of Brattleboro, Vt., the income thereof to be given yearly to the best scholar of the graduating class of the high school on Linden street, the selection to be made by a majority of the principal teachers of the studies pursued by the graduating class.

Eighth, I give and bequeath to Miss Mary M. Brown, 26 South Main street; Miss Mary F. Cummings, Brooks House; Mrs. Donner W. Austin, of Brattleboro; Mrs. Rufus Rawson, Elliot street, and Miss Annie Ford, Brooks House, all of Brattleboro, Vt.; Mrs. George R. Guy, Springfield, Mass.; and Mrs. Nellie Miller, Brattleboro; and Mrs. Ella Whitely Atwood, at the railroad depot, Westminster, Vt., each the sum of $500. Also Miss Nellie Mack of Brattleboro, Vt., the sum of $500, and Miss Mary Mack, Mrs. Rose Long, Cedar street, each the sum of $100, all of Brattleboro, Vt.

Ninth, After paying the inheritance tax and all just claims against the estate, I give and bequeath to my nephew, Howard M. Brown, the remainder of my estate. I hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my nephew, Howard M. Brown, to be executor of this my last will and testament, and he will be excused from giving bond, fully confiding in his honor to carry out my wishes herein expressed. Should he in any way become disqualified for executing the trust, then I nominate, constitute and appoint William S. Newton, town clerk, and Herbert B. Chamberlain, accountant, to be co-executors.

Chamberlain, accountant, both of Brattleboro, to be the joint executors of this my last will and testament.

In witness whereof I do hereunto set my hand and seal and publish and declare this to be my last will and testament this 15th day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three.

WILLIAM AUSTINE.
Signed, sealed, published and declared by said William Austin to be his last will and testament, in the presence of us who have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses in the presence of the testator and in the presence of one another, this 15th day of August in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three at Brattleboro, Vt.

CHARLES O'CONNOR,
CLARK W. LAMPHIER,
ANDREW J. HOPKINS.
Cedell, Whereas, I, William Austin, of Brattleboro, Vt., having by my last will and testament in writing duly executed, bearing date of August 15, 1903, bequeathed to certain persons and associations, now deceased, said William Austin, being desirous of changing my first will in certain respects, do therefore make this present writing, which I will and direct to be annexed as codicil to my will and testament as a part thereof, and in it the following:

In addition to the bequest given to Miss Mary M. Brown, 26 South Main street, in my will of August 15, 1903, I now give and bequeath the sum of $500, in appreciation of faithful service rendered me and my friends during many years, and I also give and bequeath Miss Mary F. Cummings, Brooks House, the additional sum of $500 for faithful services rendered during my illness.

The three young men who were the witnesses of the original will are witnesses of the codicil.

In a second codicil, dated October 26, 1903, the testator directs that the name of William S. Newton as an associate executor of his last will and testament be dropped in consequence of his other duties not allowing him to accept the office, and that Herbert B. Chamberlain, of Brattleboro, Vt., both of Brattleboro, be associate executors in the event of accident to the executor already named. This codicil also bequeaths to Herbert B. Taylor $1000 in addition to the bequest already given him in the will of August 15, 1903.

This will was filed in the probate court Sept. 10.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

First Convention of Windham County Interdenominational Sunday School Association at Bellows Falls.

The first annual convention of the Windham County Interdenominational Sunday School Association was held in the Methodist church at Bellows Falls, Vt., on Tuesday and Wednesday. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. F. W. Lewis of Brattleboro. Rev. L. M. Kenyon of West Brattleboro, the president of the organization, acted throughout as moderator, announced the following committee: Rev. F. W. Lewis, Brattleboro; Rev. H. A. Goodrich, Brattleboro; Mrs. Merrill, Williamsville; Rev. E. H. Jones, Brattleboro; Rev. E. E. Renshaw, Bellows Falls; Rev. J. O. Spring and C. W. Osgood, Bellows Falls; Rev. F. L. Metcalf, Putney; and Rev. E. H. Jones, Windham. The convention was followed by the report of the secretary, Mrs. George M. Love of South Newfane, and the reports of township and district associations. The principal address of the evening session was a fine discourse by F. S. Morse, the state secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, who described vividly some of the special work for boys as carried on by the Y. M. C. A. and kindred organizations. This address was listened to with keen interest and attention by the audience which filled the room to its capacity. After the choir had sung an appropriate hymn Rev. E. M. Fuller, the state field secretary of the Sunday school association, spoke, taking for his topic "The Sunday School Citizenship."

On Wednesday morning the convention opened with a praise service, led by Rev. E. C. Fisher of Westminster, Vt. After the singing of hymns, the reports of the treasurer and of the committee appointed on the preceding day. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. L. O. Shattuck of Bellows Falls; vice president, Rev. N. Wood of West Brattleboro; secretary, Mrs. G. M. Love, South Newfane; treasurer, H. P. C. Foss of Brattleboro; and director, F. T. Randall of Townshend. Superintendent home department, Rev. E. W. Sturtevant of Guilford; primary and junior superintendent, Mrs. Ferguson of Bellows Falls.

Rev. E. W. Sturtevant spoke on "The Home Department," and Mrs. A. A. Wyman on "The Home Department in the Sunday School." After this came a question box, four-minute talks on interdenominational fellowship in Sunday school work, and short addresses by F. T. Randall on "The Outlook in the County" and by Rev. E. M. Fuller on "The Outlook in the State."

The convention closed at noon Wednesday. The next session will be held by the executive committee. The hospitality of the good people of Bellows Falls has been more than generous than that extended to delegates and visitors to this convention.

Bank Burglar Shot at Newfane Gets 12 to 10 Years in Prison

Small Verdict in the Reddin Case from South Town—Dr. Page Won $500 From Town on Small Pox Case.

The indictments brought in Thursday at Newfane by the grand jury were against Charles Walcott of Londonderry, two charges of burglary, and against J. F. McCarthy, burglar, and James Howard, alias John Doe, burglar, also for burglary, abetting and assisting others in robbing the Newfane bank. Walcott, the man who was shot, and McCarthy, the man arrested in Brattleboro the morning of the bank robbery. Mr. Walcott is a farmer who lives near North Londonderry village. He was arrested on Friday by Deputy Sheriff McClure and brought to Newfane. He furnished bonds in the sum of $100.

Information was also filed in two criminal cases, as follows:

State vs. Noe Morse, Westminster, larceny of bicycle.

State vs. Fred L. Altherton, Whitehall, larceny.

State vs. Earl R. Dorset, Londonderry, assault.

State vs. F. E. Robinson, Grafton, gross lewdness.

State vs. George Rogers, Townshend, gross lewdness.

State vs. Ransom Work, Vernon, cruelty to child.

State vs. Archie W. Gamo, Halifax, burglary.

State vs. Frank N. Lynde, Brattleboro, larceny.

State vs. Mary Austin, Brattleboro, disturbing the peace.

State vs. D. Manning, Brattleboro, throwing stones through a window.

Ball in the sum of $200 was furnished Friday in the case of Manning, and he was released from jail, where he had been confined several weeks. All of the people against whom information has been filed are either in jail or out on bail.

The grand jury made a report, pronouncing the county buildings in good condition, and recommending the erection of a fire escape from the third story of the jail building, and that some minor changes be made in the interior of the jail to make it more secure.

Reddin vs. Wood.

Mary Reddin, administratrix, vs. Francis Wood. This was an action on the case to recover damages for the death of William Reddin, husband of the plaintiff, who died Nov. 21, 1901, as a result, according to plaintiff's claim, of injuries received by being run over by a team owned by defendant Sept. 28, 1901. Defendant was then proprietor of the Loveland Hotel, located on the corner of North Main and Mass. On the date of the accident one Percy B. Thompson, in the absence of the defendant, applied at the stable for a horse and buggy to be sent to North Main street, whereupon a team owned by defendant was hitched up, in which Thompson was taken to the stable by one S. A. Smith, who was driving the passenger, turned the team around and started back to Northfield. While still in the depot yard an engine blow off struck the horse, causing it to rear and time beyond control of the driver.

At this time William Reddin, an employee of the railroad company, was on his way home and was walking in a path beside the highway over which the horse was running. Roadmaster P. E. Beeman shouted to Reddin and others to get out of the way. Reddin, who was not so and was struck by the team badly, knocked down, his ankle being broken. He was taken to the hospital at Northfield, where he died. As a result of the accident, Reddin was taken to the hospital at Northfield, where he died. As a result of the accident, Reddin was taken to the hospital at Northfield, where he died.

The defense produced a large number of witnesses whose testimony tended to show that the accident was not the fault of the defendant, but was the fault of the driver, who was not in control of the team. The jury found in favor of the plaintiff, and awarded her $500 in damages. The jury also found that the defendant was liable for the death of the plaintiff's husband.

The jury took the case at 10:30 Saturday morning and at 2 p. m. Monday returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, awarding her $500 in damages. The jury also found that the defendant was liable for the death of the plaintiff's husband.

Dr. Page vs. Town of Westminster. This was an action of assumpsit to recover $500 from the town of Westminster for the treatment of a small pox case. The evidence on the part of the plaintiff tended to show that on the 19th of November, 1903, Dr. Page, who was the health officer of the town, was called to attend one Thomas Toomey, who was employed in the boarding house of Mrs. Boynton in Westminster village. Upon examination, the doctor thought that he might have small pox.

Dr. Page immediately notified Dr. Holbrook of Brattleboro, secretary of the board of health. Dr. Holbrook came the next day, and in company with Dr. Page, visited Toomey and pronounced his disease to be small pox. Dr. Page then called a conference with the selectmen and health officer, gave instructions to them relative to necessary measures to prevent the spread of the disease, and directed that a quarantine be established. In accordance with these instructions, the selectmen and health officer selected a quarantine and hired guards to watch the building.

Dr. Page testified that in making these preliminary arrangements he understood that he was employed by the selectmen to take care of the case, and he proceeded to visit Toomey as his duty required for a period of 50 days, for which service he made a charge of $10 per day. Several physicians from North Adams and Rutland testified that in their opinion Toomey had small pox, and that the service for a physician to make in such cases, they proposed to submit the matter to the voters of the town.

The evidence on the part of the town tended to show that the selectmen did not employ Dr. Page to take care of the case, and that while they knew that he was attending Toomey it was their understanding that he was doing the work of a health officer, and that they were not in any way in their employ; that Toomey was not at any time seriously sick and did not need much medical treatment; that he gained some 14 pounds or more in weight while under quarantine; that, in fact, he did not have small pox at all, but rather a mild form of skin disease, which left but little trace of its existence in the marks now on his face; that Ollette of Westminster visited Toomey during his illness and pronounced his disease something other than small pox. All of the selectmen testified that they never, individually or together, employed Toomey to give Toomey medical treatment.

The bill of Dr. Page for $500 included also his services as health officer in the case.

On Thursday morning the jury returned a verdict awarding the plaintiff the full amount of the bill and costs.

C. C. Fitts and H. E. Hether for plaintiff; O. E. Butterfield and Waterman & Martin for defendant.

The Sentences.

On Thursday morning Murray Bell, for burglary at Rockingham, pleaded guilty to the crime, and was sentenced to not less than two years nor more than two and one-half years.

Noe Morse pleaded guilty to stealing a bicycle from Gris Reed of Whitehall, and was sentenced to the house of correction for not less than six months nor more than nine months.

Charles Walcott pleaded guilty to burglary on the premises of Robert Taylor of Halifax, and was sentenced to state's prison for not less than 12 months, nor more than 18 months.

James Howard, alias John Doe, the Newfane bank robber, who was shot and captured at the time of the robbery, pleaded guilty to burglary and was sentenced to state's prison for not less than 15 years, nor more than 12 years.

Austin of Brattleboro was admitted to bail in the sum of $500, but he subsequently chanced to amount of taxable costs and paid.

Charles Walcott of Londonderry withdrew his plea of guilty to burglary, and was found against him by the grand jury for selling intoxicating liquor without a license, and was fined $500 and costs, which he paid.

Frank Larrow of Brattleboro was arraigned on the indictment standing against him in the assault with intent to kill and being guilty of breaking and disturbing the public peace. This plea was accepted by the court and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed, which was paid.

The trespass case of Delbert A. Born-ton vs. Earl R. Dorset went on trial before Judge Fitts on Friday. The case is the last civil jury case. The jury adjourned, probably will be reached by the middle of next week.

SPORTING.

Wonderful Mare Ecstacy.

Dartel, 2-year-old, bred at Essex Junction, is the wonder of the racing world. She is a mare, but she has fair to have a racing record. She was owned by E. T. Holder of the Rousing Horse stable at Barton, Vt. She was not only saved this nation from ruin, but rendered an invaluable service to mankind.

The President says it is difficult to tell about the tariff, and that, as to the Philippine question, "They have occupied some entirely different positions within fifty days. Which is the promise they really intend to keep?" It is better to await the result of the Philippine experiment, the better way, before making new promises which, as a nation we might be forced to break.

Mr. Roosevelt's Letter of Acceptance.

President Roosevelt's formal letter of acceptance of the Republican nomination for the presidency was made public last Monday. The letter is a long one, brilliantly conceived and written. In a tone of confident assurance, rising at times almost to the point of ringing defiance, it defends the policy and the acts of his own and preceding Republican administrations, and calls on the Democrats to tell in what way these acts could have been or can now be changed for the benefit of our country or for the advancement of modern civilization. Mr. Roosevelt also repeatedly arraigns the Democratic party for not making any clear, definite and unambiguous declaration of policy to be pursued on vital points in case it should come into power. The Republican party, he declares, has firm convictions, and its policies are held to be essential to national welfare and respect. That party bases its appeal to the country on what it has done and is doing, and its purposes to carry on the government in the future as in the past. Every one of its pledges, he asserts, has been scrupulously kept, and the efficiency of the administration has been equal to every task.

Coming to specific instances, the President says that, as to Panama, the administration acted in good faith in the best interests of the country, and in strict compliance with the law. Regarding the administration of the navy and naval policy, he asks if the Democratic object to the manner in which the Monroe doctrine has been upheld—if they object to the protest against the oppression of the Jews abroad—if they object to the protection of American citizens in all parts of the world? He asks again whether the Democrats object to the settlement of the Alaskan boundary question, to the beneficent work done in Cuba and to the trade-developing treaty with China? As to the tariff, he says that the Democratic "dare not openly condemn either act." Discussing the money question he remarks: "It is idle to say that the monetary standard of the nation is irreversibly fixed so long as the party which at the last election cast approximately 46 per cent of the vote refuses to put in its platform any statement that the question is settled." Toward capital and labor, the letter states, the Republican policy is to be able to say that the monetary standard of the nation is irreversibly fixed so long as the party which at the last election cast approximately 46 per cent of the vote refuses to put in its platform any statement that the question is settled.

Regarding his pension order, criticized as an encroachment on the executive or the legislative function of the government, the President says it was made in the performance of a duty imposed by Congress on the Executive, and that it complemented the regulations of Presidents Cleveland and McKinley, and that it was a measure of justice due to the men of 1861-65, who not only saved this nation from ruin, but rendered an invaluable service to mankind.

The President says it is difficult to tell about the tariff, and that, as to the Philippine question, "They have occupied some entirely different positions within fifty days. Which is the promise they really intend to keep?" It is better to await the result of the Philippine experiment, the better way, before making new promises which, as a nation we might be forced to break.

The Panama Case.

At the invitation of the editor of the Springfield Republican, Mr. Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, civil service reform commissioner, sends to that journal his promised defense, from an ethical point of view, of President Roosevelt's action in the Panama case. To begin with, he cites these historical parallels: "I think he did right because I think Louis XVI did right in recognizing the independence of the revolted American colonies; that England, France and Russia did right in recognizing the independence of Greece and liberating its territory from the Turks; that England, France and Russia did right in recognizing the independence of Belgium and compelling its evacuation by the Dutch; that the United States did right in securing the people of Panama a government of their choice and with it peace and good order in their moral, educational, sanitary and economic conditions in the near future, in place of a government defeated by all classes of the population, illegal in its origin, maintained by force, corrupt, oppressive and wholly neglectful of its duties."

Japan gets decidedly the better of Russia in the fighting, but in spite of that the Russian securities sell many points above those of their enemy. The mid-August quotation on the London market was 74 1/2 for Japanese 4 per cents, and 91 1/2 for Russian securities, the latter being at 124 1/2. Our own 4 per cent bonds were selling at 124 1/2. North America still continues to occupy the proud position of a continent whose securities sell above those of the United States, Canada and Mexico now have their national bonds quoted above par.

The disparity in numbers of the Russian and Japanese armies is frequently alleged as a reason for the reverse suffered by the troops of the czar, but when one realizes that the average Japanese soldier is only about half the size of the average blonde barbarian of the steppes, the disparity in forces seems somehow to disappear.
